Journey for approximately 2hrs along the Sekonyer River into Tanjung Puting National Park. Established as a national park in 1982 and composed of more than 400,000 hectares of mangrove swamp, rain forest and dense jungle, the park is home to primates, leopards, lizards and more than 600 species of birds. Tanjung Puting is notable for both its ecological and biological diversity as well as its orangutan conservation.

This afternoon's excursion with a local guide will have you searching for orangutans and proboscis monkeys as well as other species of animals and birds that all call the surrounding rain forest their home.

Your accommodation during the trip to Tanjung Puting National Park will be on a klotok, a traditional wooden river boat designed to navigate the waters of Indonesia and named after the noise the engine makes - 'klok tok tok tok'.

ROOM TYPE: Houseboat

MEALS: Breakfast / Lunch / Dinner

ORANGUTAN KLOTOK CRUISE - TANJUNG PUTING NATIONAL PARK, INDONESIA

Wake up early this morning and head up stream to the Sekonyer River and travel along a tributary known locally as 'Crocodile River' which, as the name suggests, is home to a number of these aquatic reptiles. Enjoying yet more superb scenery and a fresh lunch prepared by the crew en route, you will arrive at Camp Leakey (Post 3) in approximately 2 to 3 hours.

Established in 1971, Camp Leakey is a renowned orangutan research and rehabilitation center located in the heart of Tanjung Puting National Park. Founded originally as just a research center, over the years the camp has expanded and now also focuses on conservation and rehabilitation as well as continuing to carry out important research about these fascinating primates.

There will be time to look around the center and meet some of the local rangers as well as witness the daily afternoon feeding. Should you desire, there is the option to take a short trek into the jungle surrounding the camp prior to heading back to your boat.

DAY 4

MEALS: Breakfast / Lunch / Dinner

ORANGUTAN KLOTOK CRUISE - TANJUNG PUTING NATIONAL PARK, INDONESIA

After breakfast, boat down to the orangutan feeding station at Pondok Tanggui (Post 2). A journey of a little over an hour, the jungle becomes more dense as you slowly make your way north and there are good opportunities for wildlife spotting from the deck of the boat along the way.

The arrival time at Pondok Tanggui is scheduled to coincide with the morning feeding of the orangutans at 9:00am. Accompanied by your guide and a local park ranger, you will disembark the boat and hike along small tracks deep into the jungle where the feeding area is located. There will be ample time to witness these wonderful apes from close quarters before returning to the dock at approximately 11:00am to continue your expedition.

Head to Pesalat Reforestation Camp. This combined Government and NGO sponsored project focuses on the huge task of rehabilitating parts of the national park that have been destroyed over the years by illegal loggers and forest fires. Should you so desire, you can choose your own tree, plant it and also name it. A delicious lunch will be served on the boat and on the return journey there is often a good chance of spotting proboscis monkeys high in the trees above you.
